MIDD. OUTPLAYS VERMONT

Blue and White Fails to Take State Title Owing to Fumble on Vermont's 12-Yard Line, When Touchdown Seemed Inevitable.

U. V. M. SMOKER.

Enthusiasm Runs High. Snappy Speeches by Faculty Members, Coach and Captain.

On Friday evening, November 19, Middlebury held a smoker which created more enthusiasm and loyal Middlebury spirit than any similar meeting for many years past, for it was the culmination of an extraordinary enthusiasm which had been running high for some time before the Norwich game, with ever increasing intensity as the struggle with U. V. M. approached. Moreover the frequent reports that came from that worthy rival, whispering of an equal determination to "fight or die." only served to heighten the ardor which already existed. Practically every man in college was present, and not only that, each one made his presence manifest in the hearty cheers and songs which filled up the gaps between the speeches. From start to finish the atmosphere was charged with "fight."

The program consisted largely in speeches by members of the Faculty and the athletic board, and a large variety was added by selections from the college quartet and band. Captain Condit presided, and the meeting opened with a selection by the band. After an introductory speech, Captain Condit introduced Coach Holmes, who was received with a storm of applause. His talk was short and to the point, characterized by a quiet confidence in the men whom he had trained. He gave unmistakable evidence of just what he expected the team to do.

Professor Wetherell addressed the men on the subject of true sportsmanship. He pointed out the fact that the only kind of sportsmanship worth while, the only kind truly worthy of our most earnest effort is that which is characterized by all those qualities which go to make up a gentleman. Every game worth playing demands the highest sort of honor, and is ruled by the spirit that would lose rather than to compromise in the slightest one's integrity. The essential qualities, he said, which are necessary for a well fought battle are earnestness, a clear head, and a fighting heart. As an illustration of his idea of true sportsmanship, Professor Wetherell cited the spirit shown by Yale and Harvard in their relations, one with another.

Dr. Cunningham reviewed the subject from a rational and psychologial point of view, dwelling particularly on the two extreme errors of over-confidence and over-anxiety. He maintained that the only logical way of winning a vict-

Midd. Loses Another Chance When Drop Kick Was Blocked. Record Crowd See Blue and White Battle Green and Gold to 6-6 Tie. Muddy Field Makes Old Style Football the Rule.

In a game replete with thrills and sensational plays Middlebury and the University of Vermont fought a 6 to 6 tie Saturday, November 20. on Porter Field. The largest crowd that ever attended a football game in Middlebury was on hand to witness the battle and there was keen rivalry between the supporters of the two teams.

The Vermont 1ollowers occupied the stand on the north side of the field and filled it completely Ropes were stretched around the playing field to keep back the overflow from the stands, while many witnessed the game from automobiles. The crowd was handled in a very efficient manner, due to the careful forethought of Manager Huntley and his assistants.

This was the "big" game of the season and both teams had been specially trained for the contest. It was for the championship of Vermont and the resulting tie gives neither team a clear title to that honor. Anyone who witnessed the contest, however, is bound to admit that Captain Condit's men outplayed their opponents in every department of the game. The following figures may perhaps make this more clear.

In the first half Middlebury rushed the ball for a total of 125 yards against 75 for Vermont. Middlebury gained seven first downs against six for Vermont while Middlebury received some costly penalties, totaling 25 yards against 15 for U. V. M. In the second half Middlebury gained by rushing 105 yards to 80 yards for Vermont. Middlebury made five first downs, U. V. M. two, and the penalties were practically even.

So the comparative ability of the teams in advancing the ball is drawn from the above facts, and it will be een that Middlebury gained practically 10 yards to six for Vermont. In the kicking department Condit out punted Dolpin, twice booting he ball over the Vermont goal line from the center of the field. Then, Middlebury had the ball in her opponent's territory the greater part of the time and especially in the final quarter, Vermont's goal line was constantly threatened. Twice in this period Middlebury missed fine opportunities to score, once when a fumbie occurred on the Vermont 12-yard line and a few minutes later when a drop kick from the 10-yard line was partially blocked. Again, when Dolphin attempted a wide end run from behind his own goal line and barely saved himself from being thrown for a safety by Keefe, fate was indeed kind to Vermont.

Tne game was bitterly but very closely fought from start to finish. Every man on the field gave all he had for his respective college and it will indeed be a game that will linger long in the minds of those who participated in it, and especially those who have probably donned the moleskins for the last time. To these latter men it must be gratifying to know that they belonged to an eleven which fairly outplayed the game team representing our rival institution.

From another view point the game stands out as the result of a step in the right direction. The team has been directed this season by one who is to be a permanent coach and the results of a system may perhaps be shown by a glance at the wonderful development of the Harvard teams in the past few years. It has taken Coach Houghton eight years to build up his team into an almost irresistible machine and the large share of the credit is given to the system which he has developed. There is ample ground for this statement when one considers that Harvard has overwhelmingly defeated Yale the past two years and that Yale has had an unorganized collection of the most powerful football men representing any college, from which to select a team. In this case, the result of system is plainly shown and there is no reason why similar results can not be had at Middlebury.

So the game should be satisfactory from a Middlebury standpoint, even if we were held to a tie score. It is hardly fair for one to say that certain men played better than others as every one who entered the game did his share. It was mainly team work that obtained the results. Put it is only fitting that the men who stood out conspicuously at the critical times should be given a word of praise.

In the Middlebury line Captain Condit was a tower of strength on the defense and in opening up holes for the backs. He also held the team together at all stages of the game and surely did his share of the work. Hard and Horsford outclassed their opponents and very few gains were made through the center of the line. Good, until he was hurt, and Hubbard, put up good exhibitions in the wing positions. In the backfield, Bower was not up to his usual

DEBATING UNION MEETS.

Subjects Submitted by U. V. M. Discussed. Preparations for Winter Campaign Outlined.

The regular meeting of the debating union was held in the chapel Wednesday evening. The first part of the evening was given over to a discussion of the three subjects submitted by U. V. M., for the debate to be held between Vermont and Middlebury next May. The subjects submitted are (1), "Resolved, that the United States should ask the A. B. C. Powers to join with it in defining and enforcing the Monroe doctrine," (2) "Resolved, that the president of the United States should be elected for a six year term and should be ineligible for re-election," (3) "Resolved, that the administration plan for increasing our armed forces should be adopted." It was practically decided to take the Monroe Doctrine question.

Arguments on this question were then given by Miller, Wright and Buffum on the affirmative and Lyon, Hoyt and Edmunds on the negative. While none of them were finished debates they served to point out some of the essential points on both sides, showing some of the weak points and the possible methods of attack.

The men who have signified their intention of trying out for the team are to be divided up into two teams. These teams will be pitted against each other in preliminary debates through which the eliminations will be made.

Professors Wetherell, Cunningham, and Abbott are doing the coaching and they seem quite optimistic concerning our chances against Vermont, providing, of course, interest is not allowed to lag and the contestents are willing to put in the necessary amount of time and work.

Thanksgsiving on the Hill.

Thanksgiving on the hill was not such a dreary affair, after all, for those who were too far from home, or not lucky enough to be "invited out" for dinner.

The dining-room at Battell Cottage presented a very pretty scene at dinner time, with its tables arranged to form a large horse shoe, and each table decorated with flowers or fruit. To add to the home-like appearance of the rooms, fires were burning in the open fireplaces. Between courses there was a gay scramble for the places in the line, and all marched down the dining-room.

In the evening a delicious supper was served in the Social Hall at Pearsons. This was followed by dancing in the dusky hall, lighted only by fitful gleams from the open fire.

EDITORIAL.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in the past and is now being met with in getting men interested in debating. There is no doubt that debating is one of the most practical and useful activities a college student can possibly engage in but it is equally true that it is hard for the average student to find the necessary time to do his best work in this field and still do justice to his studies. A remedy for this has been suggested which seems to us a good one. Why not give regular college credit to every man who goes in for debating? Regular debates could be held and attendance could be compulsory the same as for other courses. Certainly there could be no objection to this on academic grounds and no one be apt to elect it for a snap course more than once.

This would stimulate interest in debating, thus increasing immensely our chances in "varsity" contests and would, at the same time, give many students a chance to secure the benefit from this kind of training who are now unable to get that benefit because of lack of time to devote to it.

During the past football season the support accorded the football team by the woman's college was such as to merit more than passing mention. It was a noticeable fact that when rallies were held at the field the women in attendance actually outnumbered the men; when the team took the field at Montpelier the Co-Eds made up about half of the Middlebury section which in itself was truly remarkable when the long trip and attendant expense was taken into consideration. At the Vermont game the well organized singing and cheering of the Co-eds was a pleasing feature, one that made a lasting impression upon every one present. It was apparent that the "smokeless smokers" at Pearsons had been productive of real results in stirring up college spirit among the women. Let's give the long yell with "three Co-eds" on the end. Altogether, now, one, two, three!

The suggestion that a Civics Club be formed among the women of the college is certainly a good one and should be followed up immediately. The purpose of such a club would be to discuss and debate upon current topics.

Suffrage for women is no longer a myth. It is a well established fact which the dawning of each new day brings nearer. Are we as college women prepared for it? If we are not, whom can we expect to be prepared for it? We have to admit that we cannot discuss intelligently the vital questions of the day. Do we know the facts on both sides of the suffrage question? Are we for it or against it? Many of us have not considered the question enough to decide, and it is a question which we must decide sooner or later. Why not now? As to debating—it has been said that debating is not successful among women—that women are so quick to see both sides of a case, to see things from the view point of the opposite side as well as from their own, that that they cannot successfully debate. This statement, in a way, is a sort of a challenge. Let us prove that in spite of this fact debating can be carried on by us in a successful manner.

Professors Wetherell and Abbott have offered their assistance to the women of the college to aid the formation of a Civics Club. If the women are interested in it they will plan out a course of study and will help in any way that they can. This facilitates this matter greatly and is too good an opportunity to be missed. Let us make the most of it!

Dean Ross Speaks.

Miss Ross, Dean of the Woman's College, spoke, at the Y. W. C. A. meeting held November 17, on the subject, "The Ideal College Woman". In brief, the ideal college woman should possess a fine physique and a disciplined mind. She should be unselfish, self-controlled, honest, and tolerant. The talk contained much food for serious reflection and the ideal set before us will not soon be forgotten.

Sophomore Hop.

The annual Sophomore Hop was held in the college gymnasium Wednesday evening, November 24. Miss Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, and Mr. and Mrs. Bonney were patrons and patronesses. The gymnasium was decorated with streamers of the class colors and banked with evergreens. Wilson's orchestra furnished the music. There was an exceptionally large attendance.

Informal Dance.

There was an informal dance held in the gymnasium Saturday evening, Nov. 20. Mr. and Mrs. Murch and Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were patrons and patronesses. The dance was very enjoyable and the same enthusiasm which was so noticeable at the game in the afternoon was present at the dance in the evening.

COMMUNICATIONS

EDITOR THE CAMPUS,
Middlebury, Vt.

Dear Sir:—

How about the results of the Norwich game? Were they secret or were they reserved for sole publication by The Campus? The New York Times and New York Sun each has a wide circulation and reaches a large number of alumni. Would it not be a good plan for Middlebury to have a publicity man whose duty it is to see that we get our share of newspaper space?

Yours for a better and bigger Middlebury,

CARPENTER, '14.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 17, 1915.

Editor Campus:

I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the players, coaches and student body for supporting me as football captain during the past season. The season was more or less successful, as the reader cares to classify it in regard to the Vermont game. We all had our hopes and ambitions concerning that game and most of them will have to be put off until next fall as far as football is concerned. We still have baseball and track to argue over with Vermont. Our prospects seem to be of the best in both.

The way the men came out this fall bids fare to make a winning team next year. The second team is always appreciated by a captain and this year a third team helped us out part of the time. How about four teams next fall? Our coaching staff was larger than in previous years, much credit being due Mr. Murch and Mr. Laird for helping Coach Holmes. The student body certainly receives my hearty thanks for the way they helped us during the season, especially the last two games. There is no reason why next year's team will not be the best in the history of Middlebury.

Kaleidoscope Contribution Box.

A box has been placed beside the bulletin board in the chapel for the purpose of collecting "live" material for the Annual. If you have a good grind, joke or snappy story, please write it out and drop it in the box. Pictures are in great demand also. Should you have any good films, put them in an envelope with your name. The editor will be personally responsible for them and will return the films within a week with thanks.

The success of the book depends upon the whole student body. Everybody out and make this a true and live volume of Middlebury's life! Thank you.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE BOARD.

Engagements Announced.

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth Bowles, '02 to Prof. Vernon C. Harrington, '91, was announced on Thanksgiving day. Miss Bowles is a member of the Alpha Chi Fraternity.

On Thanksgiving day Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Buttolph announced the engagement of their elder daughter, Grace, to Mr. William Henry Eldridge of Twin Fall, Idaho. Miss Buttolph, '08, is a member of the Alpha Chi Fraternity. Mr. Eldridge belonged to the class of '95 and is a member of the D. K. E. fraternity.

Freshman Debating Society.

The regular work of the Freshman Debating society began in earnest Wednesday night, November 24, with the first debate of the season. The subject under discussion was: "Resolved, that the President of the United States should be elected for a term of six years and should be ineligible for re-election." In spite of the fact that the debate was held at an inauspicious time, there was a good deal of interest shown as was evidenced by a large attendance of the freshmen, nineteen being present.

The affirmative was supported by Todd, Douglas and Taylor, while the negative was upheld by Labensky, Olsen and Hamilton. The negative showed the stronger argument and won the debate by a unanimous decision of the judges. Many of the arguments on both sides were loose and disconnected, lacking logical arrangement, but this fact in itself is of little importance in judging the real value of the work done, for it is to be expected that the tryout will reveal such faults. Moreover, in many cases, lack of sufficient time made it impossible to do full justice to the subject. On the other hand, marked ability was shown on both sides and all the men put a lot of earnestness and enthusiasm into the work.

Professors Abbott, Morgan and Wetherell acted as judges and Adkins, the president of the Freshman Debating society, as presiding officer. At the conclusion of the debate Professors Abbott and Wetherell gave the men a number of valuable points regarding form, arrangement of argument and personal address, and the principal defects of each debater were touched upon, Professor Wetherell urged particularly upon the men the importance of collegiate debate, regardless of the attainment of success as a debator. He pointed out the great value of such training to every man, and urged all Freshmen possible to line up with the work.

The debate was of particular interest to the college as a whole, for we feel gratified in affirming through the zeal and enthusiasm shown at this first debate, that a new era in debating has opened up for Middlebury College. The remarkable spirit shown in our recent athletic contests has spread to this work also, and if this enthusiasm will only continue, our future success as a debating college is assured. The men who took part had very evidently given much thought and preparation to the work and showed conclusively that we will have some splendid material for Varsity team work next year. Successful debating means a lot of hard work, but there is no activity in college where solid activity will be better rewarded, for the training afforded the individual both mentally and morally is invaluable, whether on the winning or on the losing side.

The second debate is scheduled for December 1, and the subject chosen is: "Resolved, that the administration's plan for increasing the armed forces of the United States shall be adopted." Pitkin, Whipple and Roberts will debate the affirmative, opposed by Hebard, Osteyee and Plumb. It is urged that every Freshman possible be present and, at least, lend his moral support to the work.

REVIEW OF THE FOOTBALL SEASON.

(BY CAPT. P. H. CONDIT.)

The football team of the past fall was superior to those in previous years in the wealth of experienced material from which to pick a squad. Nine games were played, three were victories, two were tie games and four were defeats. The last were all by strong teams and no disgrace was incurred through these defeats. The big game with Vermont ended in a tie, thus shattering the Middlebury hopes for a state championship.

The season really started on the thirteenth of September when all the football men should have been back at the training camp. The ones who were there know the value and the necessity of such a camp, with the first game only two days after the opening of the collegiate year. There was work and plenty of it at the camp at Lake Dunmore, still there seemed to be time enough for fun besides the work. Another year this prerequisite of a good football season should be over looked by no one. It is hard in a good many cases for the men to leave their summer jobs and get back for the early training, still all those who can possibly make the sacrifice should do it for the College. With the schedule being planned for next year it is essential that a good and early start be made.

Now for the actual season of games. The team played Amherst College at Amherst on the twenty-fifth of September, two days after college opened. The men were in much better physical condition than in previous years but the element of team play seemed to be lacking in this game. The men played good i dividual games but as has been said lacked the unity that is so necessary. Amherst won the game 14 to 7. All three of the scores being made by long runs, showing the weakness of both teams against open field running.

On the second of October Springfield College was played at Springfield and for the second time Middlebury met defeat, by the score of 20 to 6. Springfield has an exceptionally fast back field and did much of their gaining around our ends as well as making substantial gains through the line. It should be noted that Middlebury had scored in both games so far, showing that the offensive power was improving.

The first home game was played on Porter Field against Stevens Tech. on October ninth. An element of over confidence seemed to lurk in the team and it did not play as good football as in the two previous game. Both teams had a chance to score but did not take full advantage of it and the resulting score was a tie, 0 to 0.

The fourth game resulted in the largest score against us during the season, for Tufts had the best playing machine encountered. Their team play would compare favorably with that of any of the larger universities. The score, 34 to 0, was aided by injuries during the game which left the team very weak in the last quarter. Tufts outweighed Middlebury which also aided them materially.

With the start of the New Hampshire game, the team felt as though they were getting on firmer ground. It was the second home game and the out come proved to be a 14 to 0 victory for Middlebury. Most of the college saw this game and know that the team looked very good in that first half.

On October thirtieth the team took another trip playing the R. P. I. at Troy. With Colgate's 107 to 0 score, the week before against her, Rensselaer fought from the start. Middlebury seemed to have its off day when in Troy but managed to win, 6 to 0. The redeeming feature of the game occurred in the last minute of play when R. P. I. threatened our goal line. Middlebury braced and took the ball on downs having it in h r possession when the final whistle blew. Injuries again handicaped the team.

With six regulars out of the game, Middlebury faced Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amhrest on the sixth of November. Through a break of luck the "Aggies" received their own kick-off and scored in two minutes of play. . A. C. beat us 25 to 0 but with our regular team it might have been different. With a little more time in the last quarter we would have scored on them as the ball was in our possession on their eight yard line.

Recounting the Norwich game is again an old story as the college turned out in fine style, as was expected, and supported the team at Montpelier. The impression left by both the team and rooters was good and will have a lasting good feeling toward the college in that part of the state. The account of the game in the Norwich paper is interesting as it gives the impression that the ball was in our territory when the whistle blew instead of on their ten-yard line, in our possession, with every indication of another touchdown on the long end of the 19 to 13 score.

There is little to say in this review about the Vermont game on the twentieth of November at Porter Field. Their touchdown was aided materially by twenty-five yards of penalties within our thirty-yard line. Ours came from straight line plays from the kick-off down the field. Both teams failed to score the extra point after the touchdown. Middlebury missed several seemingly good chances to score, mostly in the fourth quarter. Everyone had confidence that the team would come through the game with a victory and was disappointed, not in the team, but in the breaks in the game, not coming our way.

The prospects for a winning team next year are bright. Few men will be lost by graduation and with the long list of substitutes the gaps should be easily filled. This was the first year that a man going out of the game realized that the one coming in was about as good as himself. It is a comforting feeling to the supporters of any team to know the men waiting on the side lines are as good as the men in the game. So here is hoping for the best team in the history of the college for next year.

E. H. Towne, Football Manager.

The athletic council, at its fall meeting on November 24th, elected E. Heath Towne, '17, of Waterbury, Vt., manager of the football team for next year. Towne prepared for college at Waterbury High School. Kenneth Gorham of Middlebury was the choice of the council for assistant manager.

Dance Saturday Evening.

There will be an informal dance in McCullough Gymnasium Saturday evening. Music by the College orchestra.

EXCERPTS FROM OUR CONTEMPORARIES

Middlebury 19, Norwich 13.

(From the Norwich Reveille.)

"The Middlebury game, or Harvard-Yale game of Vermont as it has often been called, was played on November 13, but started about a year ago when we were defeated by the blue and white on their own grounds by 7-0 score. Since that date every Norwich man, whether football player or not, has been playing the game deep down in his heart to win. Although the score at the top of this article shows that we were disappointed in the outcome, we are very well satisfied with the showing of the team and sincerely believe that they deserved a victory. We must however give Middlebury credit for the game and we can only wait for next year to redeem ourselves, and we hope to do it with a come-back that will remind them of former struggles with the team 'across the mountain'.

"In the hardest fought battle that either team has played this season, Middlebury defeated N. U. by a score of 19 to 13. With the hilarious supporters from each college on hand to greet each play with a deafening salvo, the two elevens scrapped until the last minute of play and when finally the whistle blew a stunned silence, and then a joyous roar from the blue and white cheering section, for the contest was over with Middlebury on the long end. At just 1:46 Middlebury ran onto the field to get the little kinks out of the players legs before starting the first of her two decisive games of the year. Her cheering section was there, two hundred strong, to aid her in taking away the honors of the day. When the Norwich team trotted onto the field they were greeted with a deafening roar from the uniformed mass that had arrived at Inter-City park, Montpelier, only a few minutes before by special train. The 'olive-drab' cheering section refused to let up, for at every instance where the noise would not interfere with signals, Cheer-leader Cedar had them on the jump. Referee Dowd lost no time in getting the captains into a midfield conference. The coin was tossed. Middlebury won the toss and chose to defend the South goal and kick-off.

"After each student body had performed a snake dance around the field, the gridiron was cleared and the battle resumed. Following an exchange of punts, separated by a little rushing, 'Tack' Keefe of the Middlebury team intercepted a forward pass and ran 25 yards for a touchdown. The goal was not kicked. For the remainder of the period Norwich rushed the blue and white gridiron warriors off of their feet, but were unable to score before the whistle blew.

"The period had just begun when Boewe heaved a forward to Brooks who grabbed it and ran for a touchdown, Boewe failed to lift the ball over the cross-bar. In the remaining minute and a half of play neither goal was threatened. The game ended with Middlebury holding the ball on her own 20 yard line."

EDITOR'S COMMENT.

We note that the Norwich writer omitted in its entirety the story of the closing period in which Middlebury pushed the Cadets steadily down the field only to be deprived of a touch down by the untimely sounding of the referee's whistle when the Norwich five-yard line was reached. Appended is the story, play by play, for the fourth period:

"On the kickoff Condit booted the ball over the Norwich goal line and it was put in play on the 20-yard line. Norwich rushed for a first down and a double pass carried the ball to the center of the field. Here Norwich took the Middlebury team by surprise by making a pretty forward pass directly up the side line. It was a good play and resulted in a touchdown, bringing the score up to 19-13 in Middlebury's favor.

"Norwich kicked off to Keefe, who returned the ball to his 30-yard line. Pollard made first down outside tackle, but a 15-yard penalty took the ball back to the 30-yard line. Here Fish made his only bad pass in the game but Bower scooped up the ball and made one of the prettiest runs of the day down the side line to the 40-yard line. Keefe smashed through to the 25-yard line and in another plunge Lynch carried the ball to the Norwich 15-yard line. A 15-yard penalty brought the ball to the 30-yard line where Norwich held for downs. The Middlebury ine held and Norwich lost the ball on her 30-yard line. Lynch and Keefe bucked the line for 15 yards. Bower went through to the five-yard line, just as the final whistle sounded, undoubtedly depriving Middlebury of another touchdown."

Thus it will be seen that the Reveille's statement that "The game ended with the ball in Middlebury's possession on her own 20-yard line" is manifestly untrue.

In the previous issue we expressed our admiration of the excellent sportsmanship of the Norwich contingent and we are therefore compelled to look upon the mis-statements in the Reveille as unrepresentative of student sentiment at the institution across the mountain. Such a purposly twisted report may convey a desired impression upon absent alumni, but is hardly worthy of men who can display such a genuine brand of sportsmanship. It must therefore merit the disapproval of every fair-minded Norwich student.

Half Way Thru.

(Worcester "Tech News.")

For the Juniors the half way mark in their career at Tech has been passed. How many friends and pleasant acquaintances have been made! With what a sense of pleasure we shall look back on our college experiences. And now two of those years have passed.

For the rest this week marks the beginning of the second half of the semester. Have we done our best? Or are there lots of things left undone?

For all of us: Let's start right here and make this the best year we have had. Resolve not merely to sneak by the mid-years, but start preparing now to make those marks satisfactory. Then again, let's not settle down too sedately but let's everyone get into the whirl of college life enough to keep alive and abreast of the times. Let's have it said that Tech turns out two things, engineers and men.

form, but nevertheless he held up his end in an able manner. Keefe and Pollard were responsible for many of Middlebury's gains and Keefe was specially conspicuous by his close following of the ball.

For Vermont, McIver and DeMarco were the best men in the line while Sunderland and Palmer stood out in the backfield.

Vermont kicked off to Keefe who was downed on his 25-yard line. Bower failed to gain through center, but Keefe went outside tackle for four yards. After another down, Condit punted to Dolphin on the Vermont 30-yard line. Palmer was nailed in an attempt to go around right end and Dolphin likewise failed to gain in two end runs. Dolphin punted to Lynch in the center of the field.

Keefe and Bower could make only three yards and Condit again punted, the ball going over the Vermont goal line and being put in play on their 20-yard line. Palmer skirted end for two-yards and Dolphin added seven more. Sunderland made it first down. Palmer and Sunderland, aided by a five-yard penalty, carried the ball to the 40-yard line.

Hard nailed Dolphin for a yard loss and on the next play Keefe made a good catch of an attempted forward pass in the center of the field. Keefe went outside tackle for eight yards and Lynch added three more. Bower could not gain around end, but Lamere plugged tackle for four yards. Condit again punted over the Vermont line.

Sunderland gained two yards through center and Palmer made it first down around end. Middlebury was offside and after Sunderland had made another rush the ball was in the center of the field. Dolphin smashed center for eight yards but Sunderland could not gain on a similar play. But Dolphin made it first down on Middlebury's 37-yard line as the first period closed. Palmer reeled off four yards around end but Horsford threw Dolphin for a two-yard loss in the next play. Dolphin attempted a forward pass, which Condit intercepted on the Middlebury 30-yard line.

Bower gained four yards around end and Lynch annexed two more through tackle. Condit kicked to the Vermont 40-yard line but Burke got a good start and carried the ball back to Middlebury's 33-yard line before he was downed. Palmer was nailed by Good for no gain but Dolphin and Sunderland went through the line to the 20-yard line. Palmer went around end to the 25-yard line. On a double pass Palmer made five yards and an offside penalty put the ball on the ten-yard line. Dolphin shot through tackle for three yards and another offside play carried the ball to the two-yard line. Sunderland failed to gain but on the next play Burke went through center for the touchdown. Palmer failed in the try for goal.

Good ran the Vermont kickoff back to the 22-yard line. Pollard pierced tackle for six yards and Bower made it first down around end. McIver broke through and nailed Lynch for no gain but a penalty for offside gave us five yards. Keefe and Lynch bucked the line to the 40-yard line.

Bower worked in a pretty 20-yard run around end and Keefe aided by Lynch and Pollard, plugged the tackles for a first down on the Vermont 23-yard line. Lynch shot through tackle for six yards more, while Pollard carried the ball to the 12-yard line.

Bower made ten yards on two rushes, advancing to the two-yard line. Here Vermont offered the stiffest resistance she showed during the game and it was on the fourth down that Bower was able to dive between Fish's legs for the touchdown. Lynch failed to make a fair catch on the punt-out and so the try for goal was lost. The whistle ending the first half sounded just after the punt-out was made, showing that Middlebury had no time to spare in the making of her touchdown.

At the start of the second half Condit kicked off to Burke, who ran to the 36-yard line before he was downed. Sunderland made four yards through center, and Palmer, on a double pass from a fake forward pass formation, dodged through to the Middlebury 32-yard line. Dolphin and Sunderland failed to gain and on an attempted forward pass, Keefe intercepted the ball on Middlebury's 22-yard line. On the first play Middlebury was set back 15 yards for holding, so that Pollard was forced to kick, Burke catching the ball on Middlebury's 30-yard line.

Sunderland and Dolphin in two rushes made eight yards and Palmer went around end for first down on the 18-yard line. The Middlebury line stiffened and held for downs on the 14-yard line. This was the last time Vermont was really dangerous and from here on Middlebury completely outclassed her rival.

Middlebury rushed the ball to her 41-yard line but was unable to make the required distance for a first down. Vermont could only hold the ball for a few plays and when an incomplete forward pass on the fourth down went outside, it was Middlebury's ball on her 38-yard line.

After Middlebury had failed to pierce the line, Pollard made a punt which was partially blocked, Vermont recovering in the center of the field. Burke again elected a forward pass. which was caught by a Middlebury man on the 42-yard line. Lynch and Pollard, aided by a five-yard penalty carried the ball to the Vermont 44-yard line. Bower gained 11 yards around right end and added 13 yards more on a fake place kick formation, making it first down on the 20-yard line. Lynch smashed throush tackle to the eight-yard line but fumbled when tackled, Vermont recovering on her 10-yard line. This play was unfortunate in coming just at this time, as everything pointed to a touchdown in a few more rushes.

Dolphin immediately punted to Bresnahan, who had taken Pollard's place, on the 35-yard line. Bower was hurt, Bresnahan going in at quarter and Morton at half back. A pretty forward pass, Bresnahan to Keefe, carried the ball to the 15-yard line. Lynch, Morton and Bresnahan went through the line to the nine-yard line, leaving four yards to be made on the fourth down.

Coach Holmes took a good chance and sent in Tatro, who had been practicing drop-kicking all the week, to make a try at a goal from the field. It was a hard place to put any man and Tatro can not be blamed for his failure to put the ball between the uprights. He did the best he could and got the ball well started, but it was low enongh to be partly blocked, so Vermont recovered on her eight-yard line.

Dolphin started on a wide end run but Keefe broke through and nearly threw him over the line for a safety. When the referee put the ball down it was only a foot from the line, showing how near Middlebury came to winning in the last half-minute of play. Sunderland and Tennien, in the final two plays of the game, rushed the ball 12 yards, thus leaving Vermont in possession of the ball on her 12-yard line.

ory is by watchful, confident aggressiveness. Moreover, the support of the student body should be thoughtfully directed, for the most confident and prolonged cheering should be given at the very moments when the team is on the offensive and is required to fight the hardest.

Coach Murch told the men of the splendid work which Coach Holmes had done with the team, and his untiring zeal and devotion to the men on the squad. It was his desire that the college fully realize the Coach's efforts and return to him an adequate appreciation of his services.

Captain Condit addressed a few words to the fellows, giving them encouragement for the hard-fought battle which was to come on the following day. He was very hopeful of victory, and could see no reason why Middlebury did not stand as good a chance of victory as her opponent.

President Thomas was the last on the roll of speakers, but no one present could possibly imagine that he was last, and when he rose to speak the fellows were apparently determined not to give him the opportunity, such was the storm of applause that greeted him.

When Prexie talks he usually has something to say, and this was surely no exception to the rule. He seemed possessed of a very strong desire to win the U. V. M. game, and the reasons he gave were as varied as they were interesting. But he desired something more than a football victory. The game itself was to be significant of a far greater fact than that merely implied in such a contest. He plead for the higher things for which Middlebury stood and was to stand in the future.

President Thomas desired of the students three things. First, he asked the men to make a new resolve, namely, to put into their studies and everyday work hereafter all the enthusiasm and genuine effort that they had shown in the recent athletic contests. Secondly, he urged the fellows to enter into the game on the following day with all those high ideals of true sportsmanship and fight, which the former speakers had voiced. Thirdly, he desired to see the men celebrate the long hoped-for victory in a fitting manner, the more especially as Prexie, Jr., was to be eight years old on that day, and he wanted the anniversary to be celebrated with a double significance. With his usual foresight, he had arranged that a goodly pile of waste lumber lying near the new chapel be free for use in the usual manner, should we "get U. V. M." and he also gave assurance that a plenty of oil would be provided.

President Thomas voiced the feelings of the whole college when he spoke of the new Middlebury that was marching up the hill with a steady and firm progress, and would continue to march on as long as Middlebury College maintained those high ideals inherited from an earlier age, and as long as we continue to respect and revere all the sterling qualities of manhood and christianity which move the world in its progress of regeneration. Middlebury has been the under dog long enough, and the time is at hand for her to rise up and assume among like institutions in our land that position of honor and dignity that her merits deserve.

"Ted" Lang Football Captain.

At a meeting of the football "M" men on Monday, November 22, Fred P. Lang, '17, of New Britain, Conn., was elected captain of the team for next year. Lang prepared for college at New Britain High school, has been a member of the varsity for three years. this year holding down the pivotal position, and should make an excellent leader.

ALBANY LAW SCHOOL

The course of study leading to the degree of L. L. B. extends over a period of three years. students who have pursued one or two years in a law office may enter the second year class as a candidate for a diploma but not a degree.

To the Student Body:—

It is indeed galling to the alumni and ought to be to the student body to be obliged to cancel the annual game with Holy Cross on the grounds of not having the men to play, but in reality the fear of being defeated. The cause this year must be sufficient of course to cancel this game, yet it is a shame that there should be a "cause." Any man who thinks that this has not given Vermont a "black-eye" in the minds of other college men is greatly mistaken. It hurts Vermont and don't think otherwise for a minute.

The whole situation at Vermont hinges on the lack of spirit and lack of support to the student body. This is plain to everyone conversant with the conditions and it is the bounden duty of every man at Vermont to change at once and get in full measure one of the real enjoyments of college life. In so doing he helps each in his way to put Vermont where she rightfully belongs, from an athletic point of view, and after his university days are over, he can meet men from other institutions on an equal footing with no apologies to offer whatever.

What About Football?

(From the Vermont Cynic.)

Has the season been a success or a failure? We have heard expressions on both sides of this question during the past few days. Middlebury did not trim us; therefore it was not a complete failure. On the other hand we did not trim Middlebury. Not having done what we started out to do, we can hardly say that the season has been a complete success. In fact, it has been far from satisfactory. Where is the difficulty? Is it in the coaching? Far from it. A man who can turn out a fighting combination like the one which held Middlebury on the 10-yard line last Saturday, after the Blue and White had rushed the ball steadily down the field, a man who can build up a team like that out of a neuclus of two varsity men, and can at the same time arouse in the student body such a spirit as was manifested last Saturday, such a man deserves the profound respect and admiration of every fellow in college. The spirit which Coach Robinson has put into his work here this fall is the redeeming feature of an unfortunate season.

Dr. Edward Breck to Lecture.

The Student Life committee of the faculty has arranged for an illustrated lecture by Dr. Edward Breck on the subject of "Our Navy and What it Means," to be given at 8 p. m. on the evening of December 8, in the McCullough Gymnasium. The lecture will be free and all members of the faculty, student body and friends of the college are invited to attend.

Dr. Breck comes to Middlebury under the auspices of the Navy League of the United States, which is said to be a non-partisan, patriotic society, whose purpose is to acquire and to spread before the citizens of the country, information as to the condition of the United States naval forces and ships, and to awaken public interest and activity in all matters tending to aid, improve and develop the efficiency of navy.

BASE BALL SCHEDULE.

THE CAMPUS has been able to secure an unofficial and somewhat tentative schedule of the 1916 baseball season which though incomplete, will give some idea of what may be expected during the spring months.

The schedule is tentative inasmuch as it has yet to be approved by the Faculty, so that some modifications may have to be made.

Manager Graydon Cowles has arranged the following schedule and in addition is negotiating for games with Amherst and Columbia.

It will be noted that Syracuse appears on the Middlebury schedule for the first time while Connecticut Aggies, Springfield College, Manhattan, Trinity and Tufts reappear after an absence of several years. Indications point to the best schedule in Middlebury's history.

The tentative schedule:

President Thomas at New Haven.

In a recent issue of The Congregationalist we note the following item, relative to President Thomas and accompanied by a half-tone cut of the President, in the report of the meetings conducted by the National Council of the Congregational churches, at New Haven, Conn., and of interest to the readers of THE CAMPUS:

"It was a reverent company that responded readily to President John M. Thomas's earnest representation of the Christian life as one entirely permeated with the spirit of Christ, so that one can say with Paul, 'I am crucified with Christ'. The hymns, 'The Church's One Foundation' and 'When I Survey the Wondrous Cross', were sung with a sincerity which made one wonder how any one could ever think that American Congregationalism had renounced or become indifferent to the great central verities of the Christian faith."

Girls Hold Rally.

Not to be outdone in enthusiam by the men the girls held a rousing rally the Friday night before the U. V. M. game. Every girl in college was present. Never having attended a men's smoker or held a rally of their own daunted them not at all. The meeting proceded as smoothly as though an everyday occurance.

First came several songs and rousing cheers then speeches interspersed with more songs. Every speech was loudly applauded. All were short and to the point. The speakers were Mrs. John M. Thomas, Miss Ball, Miss R. Arnold, Miss Myers, Miss Marsh and Miss Sibley.

At the close the freshmen girls entered carrying the great Midd, blanket which they had just completed. They were given rousing cheers.

All agreed that this enthusiasm should be carried through the spring tennis tournament with U. V. M.
